feeling of coziness and elegance.

Moving past the dining room area, a double-sided gas fireplace functions as the centerpiece of the great room, allowing it to face inward to the family room and outward to the large deck that is accessed through sliding doors in the breakfast room. Cathedral ceilings with skylights create an airy, open feel, and large Anderson floor-to-ceiling windows abound, bathing the entire living area in sunlight.

If the fireplace is the centerpiece, the kitchen takes center stage with its large prep island, rich walnut cabinetry and state-of-the-art stainless steel appliances. There's no question that it will be a fine place to prepare those festive holiday meals, which is indeed a possibility since the home is ready for immediate occupancy.

As a home built for the 55-plus lifestyle, a first-floor owner's bedroom suite is de rigueur. However in this case the concept takes a giant leap forward since all rooms and closets that make up the suite are accessed off a private owner's foyer. At the end of the foyer, sits the large sleeping area outlined on two sides by an abundance of windows. Luxurious designer touches are everywhere, but what really stands out is the multi-sided tray ceiling trimmed with crown molding and recessed lighting. Other notable features that are accessed off the owner's foyer include a massive walk-in closet, plus two additional closets that can be used to conveniently house every-day wear. And, of course, an opulent bathroom with all the perks one could desire is present and accounted for.

The entrance level also houses a nicely proportioned den that could be assigned as a study or used as a home office. A second bedroom, full bathroom and fully equipped laundry room fill out the downstairs living space.

Leading upward and adding excitement to the overall design, an exquisitely detailed wrought iron and wood staircase beckons you upstairs. At the top, a large loft looks down on the great room on one side, the entrance foyer on the other. There's also a private bedroom suite of equal opulence to the first-floor owner's suite. With its own sitting room, spacious sleeping area and luxuriously finished bathroom, not only will it afford optimal privacy, it will be a place of enjoyment for guests when they visit. There's also a large storage area off the loft that measures nearly 12 feet by over 39 feet so you'll have room to store whatever you like.

If you're a wine connoisseur, the completely finished basement is noteworthy in that at one end there's an enclave that houses a nicely sized wine cellar. Otherwise the size and layout of the basement will make it a perfect place for a pool table, music or media room.
